You are in Middle School. You will finish school around the year 2030. What ideas, inventions, new technologies and new challenges will exist in 2030? Why wait to find out? You could have the world's next greatest invention in your head! You could be the next Katalin Kariko (inventor mRNA technology for COVID vaccines), Steve Jobs (apple), Madam CJ Walker (first woman millionaire-cosmetics) or Thomas Edison (electric power generation).

In this club students will work together on projects for the world of 2030! What will you create? Will you come up with the next viral social media platform? The next crypto currency? A virtual reality classroom to help kids learn? An environment saving phone application? An AI solution to an everyday problem? Students will learn about the design cycle, collaboration and creativity while building entrepreneurial and design skills. They will experience failure and frustration, they will adapt and they may just reinvent themselves in the process!

Be part of FAA's first basketball team! This is for students who love the game of basketball, are serious about improving their skills and being challenged to play at a competitive level. Led by experienced players and coaches, training will involve skill drills, fitness, learning team offensive and defensive plays and game practice.

This program welcomes students from local middle and high schools who's schools don't have a basketball team or program. We are looking to create multiple teams as well as increasing to training two days a week if we get the numbers and desired commitment level. Do you share our passion for basketball and desire to create a competitive team? Have you got what it takes?
